

Would you like to help children in Afghanistan?

The Norwegian soldier Kristoffer Sørli Jørgensen was only 22 years of age when he lost his life. He was born and raised in Stange in the eastern part of Norway.. He was killed by a car bomb when driving his military vehicle outside Meymaneh in Afghanistan. Kristoffer was part of an important international mission trying to establish stability and safety for the people of Afghanistan and hopefully greater security in other countries as well.

KRISTOFFER'S MEMORIAL FUND

A number of people say they want to make the world a better place. Somebody has to do the work to make this happen. Fighting for freedom and justice is not a fight without risks. Kristoffer's death reminds us that working for peace and freedom may have a high price. Afghanistan is a very poor country, one of the poorest in the world. Children in particular suffer from this fact. Kristoffer witnessed this, he very much wanted to help. Would you care to make a contribution to Kristoffer's Memorial Fund?

All assets in Kristoffer's Memorial Fund will be spent in order to help the children of Afghanistan.
